Headline:
Frost, ice and fog tonight. Cold and bright tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any coastal showers mostly easing to leave a dry night with clear spells across the region. A widespread frost will form with the risk of some icy patches in places. Some dense fog patches may develop too. Minimum temperature -3 deg C (27 deg F).

Saturday:
After a cold and frosty start, it will be mostly fine day, with good spells of sunshine. Fog may linger across some western parts and it will remain cold everywhere. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Turning cloudier on Sunday, after a cold and frosty start. Outbreaks of rain will slowly edge southwards later Monday. Starting dry Tuesday before rain later. Breezier and turning less cold.
